

6. RECREATION AND CULTURAL ACTIVITIES: In order to provide for the needs of recreational and cultural programs, the county should support and encourage these activities. Without recreational and cultural activities, people will be more apt to leave the county, or not consider it for a place of residence.

7. DEVELOPMENT STANDARDS: The county will shape its own destiny. It needs to develop standards by which to control unplanned growth. Without standards county expenses will increase much more rapidly than with them. Development of a sound tax base is essential to continued growth of the county.

Jackson County should be very concerned with not only will it grow, but also how it will grow in the years to come. The county should establish goals and objectives for all phases of growth within the county. It should then provide necessary programs and policies that work towards the accomplishment of the established goals and objectives. The county should encourage full cooperation among the various private and governmental concerns within the county in working toward a well-planned and economically sound county of the future.
